

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A system and method for reducing brush temperature associated with an electric motor or alternator is disclosed as having at least one brush box for housing at least one brush biased radially toward an opening toward the commutator. The brush boxes have at least one or a plurality of heat sink fins associated therewith for thermally conducting heat away from the brushes.